ORGANIZED LABOR PLANS ON LABOR SHORTAGE ADOPTED

Much Discontentment And Exploitation of Labor Continues in England

Government Controls Nearly 1000 Establishments—Prohibits Strikes and Guarantees Large Profits to Employers.

LABOR ARTICLE NO. 3.—THE
PRESENT SITUATION.

By ED L. KEEN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, Oct. 9.—(By Mail).—Organized labor first suggested how to deal with the labor shortage in munitions industries. In November, 1914, the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and four other unions proposed that firms engaged on private work be given government work;
firms working short time, transfer surplus labor to busier centers; skilled workmen be brought from Canada and Australia; skilled men who had enlisted be brought back from the trenches.

This then appealed not to the government or to the employers. Six months later, after the spring offensive in Flanders failed through lack of munitions, it was adopted.

Following this expose of the Empire's grave danger, all the skilled labor unions in the United Kingdom agreed, during the war, to allow unskilled workers to use lathes and other machines, permitted women in munitions work, withdrew opposition to the premium bonus system and agreed not to re... or hamper the output.

Right after this Lloyd George said
the real cause of the munitions shortage was drink. He abandoned this later when he saw that the facts were against him, but much mischief had been done. The British masses are not thick-skinned. Their feelings were hurt. To be called drunks just after what they had done was discouraging.

Next came the Munitions Act.
Early in the year labor suspected that Lloyd George and the government desired industrial conscription. The government had refused to deal with the increased living cost, increased profits, or the claims of labor that the war ought not to be a means of labor exploitation by capital.

The Munitions Act provided prohibition of strikes; government control of certain establishments, now nearly 1,000; guaranteed employers in controlled establishments the average of profits for the last two years plus one-fifth extra, and allowances for capital expenditure; suspended all trade union regulations in controlled establishments, and subjected workers to heavy fines for striking, decreasing output, or going to work else where.

Many workers felt that this was a form of slavery. They would have preferred the munitions factories nationalized and the workers responsible in conjunction with the state for discipline and output. There would have been less dissatisfaction had the act been scrupulously observed by employers and sympathetically administered by the government. A few instances:

Armstrong & Whitworth, Open-
shaw, dismissed 151 Steel Smelters' Union men, refusing them certificates required by the Munitions Act before they could get other work.

At Sheffield a worker asked the local munitions tribunal's permission to take a position closer to where his wife, almost at death's door, resided.
Permission was refused. Fourteen Manchester workmen, summoned for contravening the strike clause of the act, proved that the government had not acquainted them with the act's provisions and that their employers were not engaged exclusively upon government work. They were fined.

In defense of the biggest strike since the act went into effect, when 1,800 Thornycroft's shipbuilding yard workers at Southampton downed tools because of the introduction of non-union labor, labor says the employers themselves first violated the act's provision that "due notice shall be given workmen of any change or working conditions desired and opportunity for local consultation with the workmen or their representatives shall be given, if desired." This, they say, was the real cause of the strike.

Leaders of labor in Great Britain contend that the workers still are as wholeheartedly in favor of the war as when it started. But, they say:
Exploitation continues; the government's attitude toward increased living cost and increased profits of employers still is unsatisfactory; to labor.

The one hundredth anniversary of the Centre Methodist church will be celebrated at the church building on the Clearfield-Curwensville state road, from December 1 to 5. Every thing that is possible to be done for making the program interesting and a success, is being accomplished by the program committee in charge.
The greater part of the former pastors will attend the celebration and do their share toward making it a success. The many different surrounding churches will also participate in the services.

The Centre M. E. church is one of the oldest active churches in this county and has a large number of friends in all parts of the county who are either former members of the church or are descendants of former members. The church wishes to take this means of extending to them and to the public in general a cordial invitation to attend this centennial celebration. A complete program will be published later.

WOULD-BE TURKEY THIEVES CHASED AWAY BY DOG

Last night two well known characters about the town made an attempt to secure their Thanksgiving turkeys without paying the current price of 35 cents per pound. The attempt was made on a certain residence in the borough but the whereabouts of this residence has not been disclosed by the officials. When the two would-be thieves arrived at their rendezvous about midnight, and started operations a ferocious looking bull dog appeared on the scene and created such a disturbance that the two men left the premises on short order without their booty. These two men are known to the officials but on account of their failure no action will be taken.

FOREIGNER THROWN FROM PORCH BREAKS HIS NECK

Tried to Join Drinking Party, and is Killed Being Ejected

Indiana, Nov. 23.—Joe Remanusk, of Earnest, this county, was killed early today when it is alleged he insisted on becoming a member of a drinking party at that place. While returning home from work in the mines he heard a number of his countrymen making merry in a house near by and went to join them. The intrusion was resented it was stated and Remanusk was pushed back over the porch breaking his neck as he struck the ground twelve feet below.

Youths Between 14 and 16
Years of Age Required to Attend School

Compelled to Attend Eight Hours a Week and Regular Number of Weeks a Year—State Aid Given to School Districts.

In view of the fact that the Cox
Child Labor Act becomes effective on January 1st, arrangements are being made to establish continuation schools in the school districts of Pennsylvania. All minors between the ages of 14 and 15 years, who have working certificates, except those employed on the farm or in domestic service in private homes, will be required to attend. These schools must be in session the same number of weeks as are the regular schools of the particular district. It will be necessary for each pupil to attend a continuation school eight hours per week. He may be present a period of eight hours on one day per week and two days of four hours each; or if thought advisable, the instruction may be given continuously, provided the total number of hours of schooling received by these pupils be equivalent to eight hours per week during the school year.

All of the continuation schools must be approved by the state department of public instruction in regard to their location, equipment, courses of study, qualification of teachers and method of instruction.

The schools may be conducted either in the regular school houses or in factories and stores. Many of the larger manufacturers and merchants have fitted out rooms in their establishments as school rooms where instructors from the school department will come to execute the work planned. None of these schools are permitted to be in session on Saturday or Sunday nor are they allowed to open before eight o'clock in the morning or close after five in the afternoon.

STATE-AID.

When a school district has fulfilled the regulations of the department of public instruction, that district will receive from the Commonwealth financial assistance as stated in the following schedule.

Each district receives for each teacher of Class A for the continuation school, two hundred dollars ($200); teacher of Class B, one hundred fifty dollars ($150). Teachers of Class A include all those who have had three or more years teaching experience in Pennsylvania; Class B includes all those who have had one to three years' experience in Pennsylvania. Teachers of both classes must hold special certificates to teach in the continuation schools.

Each school district also receives fifty per cent. of the cost of equipment necessary for the academic work and also fifty per cent. of the cost of equipment necessary for the variable vocational work. Fifty per cent. is also given to the fixed vocational work.

The time devoted to work in the continuation school will be divided in such a way that forty per cent. of it will be given to academic subjects, thus continuing the general education of the child; thirty per cent. of the fixed vocational subjects, which are those common to the various industries; and the remaining thirty per cent. to the variable vocational subjects; the character of which depends entirely upon the industries of the local community.

The following outline of work has been prepared and sent out by Mr.
Millard B. King, director of industrial education of the department of public instruction.

Greece Believed To Have Acquiesced Demands of Allies

Will Remain Passive to Encroachment
Of Allied Forces, but will not
Cast Lot With Them

LONDON BELIEVES QUESTION SETTLED

Athens, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
—Another conference has been arranged between King Constantine and Deyla Coochi, special French emissary in Greece, it was announced today.
It has been made clear to the Greek government again that the entente powers do not insist on armed aid from Greece in their Balkan campaign, but they require assurance of a hand off policy by the Greeks no matter how the Balkan fighting may develop.

London, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
—Greece is believed today to have agreed sufficiently to the allies demands to have abated necessity for forceful methods of coercion. The conclusion is based on an official foreign office denial that Greek ships are being seized or detained by the British or that a blockade of her ports has been established. If the Athens government had not at least promised to refrain from interference with the allies Balkan campaign, it is assumed both these steps would have been taken.

BULGARIANS HAVE HEAVY LOSS IN MONASTIR BATTLE

Assault Repulsed and City Still in Hands of Serb Forces

London, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
—Ten thousand Bulgarians have been killed and wounded in fighting for Monastir. The Bulgarian forces attacked the town Saturday, Salonika advises say. It was learned here today for the first time that the assault was repulsed.
Repeated earlier reports were to the effect that the town had fallen.
The Serbs driven south rallied before Monastir and fought desperately. The struggle was at close quarters. They were heavily outnumbered, but their reckless courage turned the tide of battle in their favor. Sunday the Bulgarians were in retreat. Falling back about five miles they made a stand. This position they still held at latest accounts.

That Monastir will now hold out is believed here today. British troops are pouring in from Salonika to help the Serbs. Big guns are being mounted and the town's defenses are being strengthened heavily. A fresh Bulgarian attempt is looked for hourly. The Bulgarians have been reinforced from the north, but the Monastir defenders are now in a strong position. A big battle is expected. The Bulgarians were repulsed with a loss of 600 captured is reported. All previous advances have indicated that no large Serb bodies remained in that district.

is the product of American steel

TUESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 23, 1915

One long-felt of this bracing air is enough to be beneficial for the rest of your life.

It's about time for Jimmie to lay claim to the drum-stick, and Grandma to speak up for the wing feathers.

Kittens may be planning to eat Turkey along about Christmas time, but the bet is ten to one that the cat bird has been toughened too much this year past to make it palatable.

We don't know a great deal about DuBois pastors, but if reports are true of their efforts to cause the arrest of a lot of women working for one of DuBois' charities, not knowing much about them is going to be one thing we'll struggle through life with without regretting.

The new commissioners did well to select their legal advisors at this time. The county's business is large in volume and complicated by many laws which a layman would be foolish to grapple with alone. With the advice and counsel of the able firm of lawyers the commissioners have selected, they should be able to undertake their duties unhampered by fear of blundering into legal complications before they are accustomed to the responsibilities of office.

A charity bazaar is a hold-up, pure and simple.
 Everybody who attends one expects to be mulcted.
 That is exactly what he goes for, and if the mulcting is done with a pin wheel, or whether it is done by the sweet faced young lady who sells you a ten cent gimcrack for a quarter, it is robbery. A negro once expressed it very tersely. He was returning from a church affair with arms full of useless junk when a friend struck him for the loan of a quarter. "Deed I'm sorry, Jasper, but I ain't got a cent." "Go 'long, nigger! Aint got a cent an' dis payday!" "Hit's de truif, jes de same." "Well, what is you do wid yo' money?" "Jasper, I've been bazzarred!"

Election to office was determined by drawing the total vote by eight

 Any candidate with 312 then

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"Rumania, continually in the public eye as a possible factor in the world-war, whose resources both in men and materials give this little nation a military importance out of proportion to its size and fame, is described in a study, 'Rumania, the Pivotal State,' prepared by James Howard Gore for the National Geographic Society. The bulletin describing the strength and organization of Rumania reads as follows:

"The Rumanian lands—composed of two principalities, Moldavia and Wallachia—first found freedom from the Turk in the treaty of Paris, signed in 1856. They were united in government almost from the start; and under the rule of their second Prince, Charles of Hohenzollern, a vigorous spirit of nationalism was instilled into all classes, and, after the defeat of the Turks at Plevna by their soldiers, the little principality was recognized as a kingdom. The present king is a nephew of Prince Charles, and he rules over a land of 58,489 square miles, or one slightly greater than England and Wales and only a little less than Massachusetts and New York combined. Within this territory there were, according to the last census, 7,569,000 inhabitants, giving a density of population slightly greater than that of Maryland.

"The fields of Rumania are very fertile, and many conquerors have quarreled over the division of its soil.
 Its system of land ownership is complicated, but, in general, it may be said that out of 38,000,000 acres of arable land the small farmers have a little more than one-third, while the large proprietors have 13,000,000 and the state 6,000,000. The lands owned by the state, known as Crown domains and consisting of 12 estates, exercise great influence as model establishments. In all departments, conservation of natural resources is taught by precept and example, and forestry, which was a hobby of the late king, found a quick response from the peasants who affectionately called the oak their brother and the elm their cousin. Lumber, in various forms, ranks fourth in the list of Rumania's exports.

"Progress has been steady and rapid in Rumania, and one may find villages of peasant farmers that can not be surpassed for comfort. It is essentially an agricultural state, and the rich soil insures a good return for the peasants' labor. It is said that there are estates which, although long under cultivation without a single manuring, continue to yield twenty-five bushels of wheat while other tracts more scientifically handled, produce as much as thirty-six bushels to the acre. It is because of this fertility that the Danubian states rank with Russia, Argentina, and the United States as the chief wheat-growing countries on the globe.

"Crop failures occasion general distress, as 86 per cent. of the population depend upon agriculture; and Rumania will continue to be subject to economic depressions as long as she remains exclusively dependent upon the wealth of her harvests. Indian corn is one of the staples of her peasants' tables.

"The Rumanian farmer is quite superstitious, and, in his agricultural endeavor, makes use of a number of signs in which not only the moon, but all nature, takes part. Thus, when the sparrows flutter about, chirruping; when the cattle show nervous restlessness and the forest gives forth unusual sounds; when the cock crows all day long, the ducks thrash the ground with their wings, and the frogs croak incessantly; when the mist rises, the sun sets in a cloud, and your ear itch, there surely will be rain. When, on the other hand, the sparrows take a bath in the dust, when the storks stand quietly in the field, the lambs gambol gaily, and eat, after washing her face, looks at the door, there will be fine weather.
 But when the sparrows are hurrying about looking for shelter; when the lark dashes against the windows; when the cattle bellow, looking up into the air, and the pig goes about with a straw in his snout, then a storm is threatening.

"The Rumanian is not a tradesman. Still he is an industrialist in his own way, and almost everything about the house is his own handiwork. The great industrialist in the peasant's home is the housewife. She takes a hand at everything except leading the hay. She takes the hemp and the flax from the seed to the finished garment, and deems herself fortunate if the husband plows for her the ground. Spinning and weaving are done by the women and the clothing worn by the family are tangible evidences of the housewife's taste and industry. To wear store-bought clothes, until recent times, a token of indolence or awkwardness on the wife's part.

"Military service is universal and compulsory. All young men between the ages of 19 and 21, unless physically incapacitated, receive at least six months of military training, and in the schools preliminary military training. At twenty-one, the active service with the army begins with two years drill in the infantry, followed by three years in the other arms of the service. The army is the country's pride, and the roster of its standing army calls for two hundred and ninety thousand men, armed with modern rifles. It was this this number could be largely increased. The Rumanian navy consists of a protected cruiser, a few patrol boats, and some torpedo boats.

"Rumania's one hundred and twenty senators are elected for eight years and receive, while in session, four dollars a day. Eligibility consists of being more than forty years of age and of having an annual income of at least $1,800. Her 188 members of her chamber of deputies are elected for four years.

"Salt deposits in Rumania cover an enormous area and have a thickness varying from six to eight hundred feet. There are, also, vast oil fields in the land exporting a product amounting to a value of $8,000,000 a year. The annual grain exports amount to nearly $200,000,000. Rumania's natural trade route is the Danube, and this is supplanted by 2, 333 miles of railroad, of which the government owns 2,100 miles. Elementary education is free and compulsory, and an illiterate peasantry is slowly being taught to read and write."

The Broken Coin

A Story of Mystery and Adventure
By EMERSON HOUGH
From the Scenario by Grace Cunard

(Copyright, 1915, by Wright A. Patterson)

Reprinted from the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"The treasure of the king, buried in the deep voice of his enemy, once he friend—a friend once too often betrayed."

"By virtue of your sword only shall you escape from here, Sachio," said Count Frederick, calmly. "Stand back of me, mademoiselle, and give me reach."

In a flash the sword of the two great men crossed in the encounter. Sachio was an excellent swordsman, and for a moment neither had advantage. The young girl screamed in terror at the sight, for she knew the redoubtable reputation of Sachio as a swordsman, and long ere this she had selected the one whom she desired to see victor in this or any encounter.

Sachio was full of tricks. He had no wish to waste time here, and yet saw not how to pass the blade now opposing him. Suddenly he swung up his hand to his chest as though struck, and for an instant, it did not result. The steady point of Count Frederick's gleaming blade before his breast ready to thrust. And for another reason was this subterfuge worse than a real one for Sachio. As he caught his hand against his breast there came from his concealment in his pocket something metallic, which fell upon the floor. It rolled but briefly, for it was not round—this piece of metal. It was a half coin.

Upon this Kitty fell with a sudden cry. She knew in a flash what was this bit of metal. She knew how Sachio must have prized it, and now, now Sachio, in the luck of the game, had lost, and lost by his own hand.

Agile as a cat, the girl stooped, ran, and emerged with the bit of metal in her hand. And still the eyes of the two fighting men dared not turn away. Sachio laughed, and tossed her his shoulder a taunting word.

"It is worthless, mademoiselle," said he, "counterfeit—this nothing."

Count Frederick said nothing, but he heard her words coming to him now from behind his shoulder.

But the cold eye of Count Frederick never turned from the face of his adversary. He made no answer to these words, although he heard the sound of her footfalls back of him as she fled down the hall toward the interior of the caverns.

The strong wrist of the swarthy nobleman covered his breast with his extended hand. His eyes, bold even in this extremity, met that of his opponent. But Sachio knew the die indeed was cast. He knew now that he had failed.

For one moment he edged on inch by inch, endeavoring to reach a point from which he might spring past Frederick, and so follow the fleeing girl down the passageway. But always the other edged back by inch in front of him. Always the cold eye looked into his. Always the steady steel quivered him.

But Sachio himself suddenly closed this present encounter, suddenly deferred what he himself knew in swift observation must be his end. With a quick sweep of his sword he cut the front of his body, he sprang to one side and back. Casting down upon the floor the blade with which he had fought, he fled inconspicuously. Count Frederick did not pursue him. Two things prevented that. One of these was the errand to which Kitty Gray had summoned him. The other reason was Kitty Gray herself.

Turning he hastened after her, fast as he might, down the deep passages through which she had now fled.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach aches, tongue is coated and when the weather is hot you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's uric waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

COLUMBIAN, Nov. 23.—Officials at the State House recalled today as the centennial anniversary of the birth of William Dennison, Ohio's noted civil war governor. Gov. Dennison was a native of Cincinnati and was a delegate from that city to the Pittsburgh convention in 1868 which inaugurated the Republican party. He was selected governor of Ohio in 1869 and upon the outbreak of the war took possession of the railroads and telegraphs in the name of the state and promptly adopted other measures demanded by the exigencies of the time. Through his assurances of support to the Unionists in western Virginia and his promptitude in sending Ohio troops into that section, the western territory of the Old Dominion was saved to the Union. In 1864, when Postmaster-General Montgomery Blair resigned his seat in President Lincoln's cabinet, Gov. Dennison was appointed his successor. He was re-elected in 1872, when his administration policy of reconstruction was the main feature of his record.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, Oct. 9.—(By Mail).—Or-
deal with the labor shortage in munitions industries. In November, 1914, the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and four other unions pro-
work be given government work;
firms working short time, transfer
ed workmen be brought from Canada
trenches.

ernment or to the employers. Six
of munitions, it was adopted.

output.

discouraging.

Early in the year labor suspected that
Lloyd George and the government de-
labor exploitation by capital.

trolled establishments the average of
ers to heavy fines for striking, de-
where.

tionalized and the workers responsible in conjunction with the state for
few instances:

shaw, dismissed 151 Steel Smelters'
they could get other work.

wife, almost at death's door, resided.
were not engaged exclusively upon
government work. They were fined.

shall be given, if desired." This,
strike.

as when it started. But, they say:
Exploitation continues; the government's attitude toward increased liv-
labor.

celebrated at the church building on
the program committee in charge.
success. The many different surrounding churches will also participate in the services.

church or are descendants of former
bration. A complete program will be published later.

vous about midnight, and started operations a ferocious looking dog appeared on the scene and creat-
be taken.

Indiana, Nov. 23.—Joe Remanusk,
of Earnest, this county, was killed
early today when it is alleged he in-
struck the ground twelve feet below.

School Districts.

January 1st, arrangements are being made to establish continuation schools
in the school districts of Pennsyl-
of 14 and 15 years, who have working certificates, except those employed on the farm or in domestic service in private homes, will be required to attend. These schools must be
as are the regular schools of the particular district. It will be necessary
school year.

partment of public instruction in regard to their location, equipment,
teachers and method of instruction.

will come to execute the work planned. None of these schools are per-
noon.

receive from the Commonwealth fi-
following schedule.

teacher of Class A for the continua-
($200); teacher of Class B, one hundred fifty dollars ($150). Teachers
perience in Pennsylvania; Class B includes all those who have had one to
three years' experience in Pennsylv-

tional work.

will be given to academic subjects,
thus continuing the general educa-
are those common to the various in-
cent. to the variable vocational sub-
local community.

been prepared and sent out by Mr.
lic instruction.

Athens, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
—Another conference has been ar-
in Greece, it was announced today.
It has been made clear to the Greek
develop.

London, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
has been established. If the Athens
been taken.

London, Nov. 23 (By United Press).
—Ten thousand Bulgarians have been
Monastir. The Bulgarian forces at-
was repulsed.
the effect that the town had fallen.
battle in their favor. Sunday the
at latest accounts.

Bulgarian attempt is looked for tomorrow. The Bulgarians have been reinforced from the north, but the Monastir defenders are now in a strong position. A big battle is expected. The
district.

Cleveland, Nov. 23 (By United

Penrose and 48 other Pennsylvanians, was on exhibit three hours today.
Over 50,000 school children freight consigned for the warring na-

to store the freight because there are not enough vessels in the foreign trade to transport the goods rapidly.

One long-felt of this bracing air is enough to be beneficial for the rest of your life.

It's about time for Jimmie to lay claim to the drumstick, and Grandma to speak up for the wing feathers.

Kitchen may be planning to eat Turkey along about Christmas time, but the bet is ten to one that the old bird has been toughened too much this year past to make it palatable.

We don't know a great deal about DuBois pastors, but if reports are true of their efforts to cause the arrest of a lot of women working for one of DuBois' charities, not knowing much about them is going to be one thing we'll struggle through life with without regretting.

The new commissioners did well to select their legal advisors at this time. The county's business is large in volume and complicated by many laws which a layman would be foolish to grapple with alone. With the advice and counsel of the able firm of lawyers the commissioners have selected, they should be able to undertake their duties unhampered by fear of blundering into legal complications before they are accustomed to the responsibilities of office.

A charity bazaar is a hold-up, pure and simple. Everybody who attends one expects to be mulcted. That is exactly what he goes for, and if the mulcting is done with a pin wheel, or whether it is done by the sweet faced young lady who sells you a ten cent gimcrack for a quarter, it is robbery. A negro once expressed it very tersely. He was returning from a church affair with arms full of useless junk when a friend struck him for the loan of a quarter. "Deed I'm sorry, Jasper, but I ain't got a cent." "Go 'long, nigger! Aint got a cent an' dis payday!" "Hit's de truif, jes de same." "Well, what is you do wid yo' money?" "Jasper, I've been bazzarred!"

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"Rumania, continually in the public eye as a possible factor in the world-war, whose resources both in men and materials give this little nation a military importance out of proportion to its size and fame, is described in a study, 'Rumania, the Pivotal State,' prepared by James Howard Gore for the National Geographic Society. The bulletin describing the strength and organization of Rumania reads as follows:

"The Rumanian lands—composed of two principalities, Moldavia and Wallachia—first found freedom from the Turk in the treaty of Paris, signed in 1856. They were united in government almost from the start; and under the rule of their second Prince, Charles of Hohenzollern, a vigorous spirit of nationalism was instilled into all classes, and, after the defeat of the Turks at Plevna by their soldiers, the little principality was recognized as a kingdom. The present king is a nephew of Prince Charles, and he rules over a land of 58,489 square miles, or one slightly greater than England and Wales and only a little less than Massachusetts and New York combined. Within this territory there were, according to the last census, 7,569,000 inhabitants, giving a density of population slightly greater than that of Maryland.

"The fields of Rumania are very fertile, and many conquerors have quarreled over the division of its soil. Its system of land ownership is complicated, but, in general, it may be said that out of 38,000,000 acres of arable land the small farmers have a little more than one-third, while the large proprietors have 13,000,000 and the state 6,000,000. The lands owned by the state, known as Crown domains and consisting of 12 estates, exercise great influence as model establishments. In all departments, conservation of natural resources is taught by precept and example, and forestry, which was a hobby of the late king, found a quick response from the peasants who affectionately called the oak their brother and the elm their cousin. Lumber, in various forms, ranks fourth in the list of Rumania's exports.

"Progress has been steady and rapid in Rumania, and one may find villages of peasant farmers that can not be surpassed for comfort. It is essentially an agricultural state, and the rich soil insures a good return for the peasants' labor. It is said that there are estates which, although long under cultivation without a single manuring, continue to yield twenty-five bushels of wheat while other tracts more scientifically handled, produce as much as thirty-six bushels to the acre. It is because of this fertility that the Danubian states rank with Russia, Argentina, and the United States as the chief wheat-growing countries on the globe.

"Crop failures occasion general distress, as 86 per cent. of the population depend upon agriculture; and Rumania will continue to be subject to economic depressions as long as she remains exclusively dependent upon the wealth of her harvests. Indian corn is one of the staples of her peasants' tables.

"The Rumanian farmer is quite superstitious, and, in his agricultural endeavor, makes use of a number of signs in which not only the moon, but all nature, takes part. Thus, when the sparrows flutter about, chirruping; when the cattle show nervous restlessness and the forest gives forth unusual sounds; when the cock crows all day long, the ducks thrash the ground with their wings, and the frogs croak incessantly; when the mist rises, the sun sets in a cloud, and your ear itch, there surely will be rain. When, on the other hand, the sparrows take a bath in the dust, when the storks stand quietly in the field, the larks gambol gaily, and eat, after washing her face, looks at the door, there will be fine weather. But when the sparrows are hurrying about looking for shelter; when the larks dashes against the windows; when the cattle bellow, looking up into the air, and the pig goes about with a straw in his snout, then a storm is threatening.

"The Rumanian is not a tradesman. Still he is an industrialist in his own way, and almost everything about the house is his own handiwork. The great industrialist in the peasant's home is the housewife. She takes a hand at everything except leading the hay. She takes the hemp and the flax from the seed to the finished garment, and deems herself fortunate if the husband plows for her the ground. Spinning and weaving are done by the women and the clothing worn by the family are tangible evidences of the housewife's taste and industry. To wear store-bought clothes, until recent times, was a token of indolence or awkwardness on the wife's part.

"Military service is universal and compulsory. All young men between the ages of 19 and 21, unless physically incapacitated, receive at least one year of military training. At twenty-one, the active service with the army begins with two years drill in the infantry, followed by three years in the other arms of the service. The army is the country's pride, and the roster of the standing army calls for two hundred and ninety thousand men, armed with modern rifles. It was this this number could be largely increased. The Rumanian navy consists of a protected cruiser, a few patrol boats, and some torpedo boats.

"Rumania's one hundred and twenty senators are elected for eight years and receive, while in session, four dollars a day. Eligibility consists of being more than forty years of age and of having an annual income of at least $1,800. Her 188 members of her chamber of deputies are elected for four years.

"Salt deposits in Rumania cover an enormous area and have a thickness varying from six to eight hundred feet. There are, also, vast oil fields in the land exporting a product amounting to a value of $8,000,000 a year. The annual grain exports amount to nearly $200,000,000. Rumania's natural trade route is the Danube, and this is supplanted by 2,333 miles of railroad, of which the government owns 2,100 miles. Elementary education is free and compulsory, and an illiterate peasantry is slowly being taught to read and write."

(Copyright, 1915, by Wright A. Patterson)

Reprinted from the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"By virtue of your sword only shall you escape from here, Sachio," said Count Frederick, calmly. "Stand back of me, mademoiselle, and give me reach."

In a flash the sword of the two great men met in the encounter. Sachio was an excellent swordsman, and for a moment neither had advantage. The young girl screamed in terror at the sight, for she knew the redoubtable reputation of Sachio as a swordsman, and long ere this she had selected the one whom she desired to see victor in this or any encounter.

Sachio was full of tricks. He had no wish to waste time here, and yet saw not how to pass the blade now opposing him. Suddenly he swung up his hand to his chest as though struck, and for an instant, it did not result. The steady point of Count Frederick's gleaming blade before his breast ready to thrust. And for another reason was this subterfuge worse than a real one for Sachio. As he caught his hand against his breast there came from his concealment in his pocket something metallic, which fell upon the floor. It rolled but briefly, for it was not round—this piece of metal. It was a half coin.

Upon this Kitty fell with a sudden cry. She knew in a flash what was this bit of metal. She knew how Sachio must have prized it, and now Sachio, in the luck of the game, had lost, and lost by his own hand.

Agile as a cat, the girl stooped, ran, and emerged with the bit of metal in her hand. And still the eyes of the two fighting men dared not turn away. Sachio laughed, and tossed her his shoulder a taunting word.

But the cold eye of Count Frederick never turned from the face of his adversary. He made no answer to these words, although he heard the sound of her footfall back of him as she fled down the hall toward the interior of the caverns.

The strong wrist of the swarthy soldierman covered his breast with his extended steel. His eyes, bold even in this extremity, met that of his opponent. But Sachio knew the die indeed was cast. He knew now that he had failed.

For one moment he edged on inch by inch, endeavoring to reach a point from which he might spring past Frederick, and so follow the fleeing girl down the passageway. But always the other edged rich by inch in front of him. Always the cold eye looked into his. Always the steady steel quivered him.

But Sachio himself suddenly closed this present encounter, suddenly deferred what he himself knew in swift observation must be his end. With a quick sweep of his sword he sprang to one side and back. Casting down upon the floor the blade with which he had fought, he fled inconspicuously. Count Frederick did not pursue him. Two things prevented that. One of these was the errand to which Kitty Gray had summoned him. The other reason was Kitty Gray herself.

Turning he hastened after her, fast as he might, down the deep passages through which she had now fled.

Last Siege.

interrupted the prince as he approached the chamber still sat with her American—"Excellency, I am not here."

"What is it?" demanded the nobleman calmly. "Are they calling us from our own port?"

"Truly that, excellency. We have a wireless call. We were summoned again, and now are summoned back again. They demand that we shall come quickly."

"What is wrong?" demanded Count Frederick springing to his feet.

"Everything, excellency. Word has come that Grahofen is marching against us once more—even our old ally may be betrayed."

For a moment Count Frederick stood silent. "I see," said he. "That ruthless tyrant Cortislaw has forgotten his treaty and is going to war against us when he thinks us unprotected. His army, led by Sachio, is now on the march."

"Sachio," said the prince minister, "is a man of power and power is his strength."

"Sire," said the prince minister, "Sachio is a man of power and power is his strength."

"What do you here, Sachio?" broke in the deep voice of his enemy, once he friend—a friend once too often betrayed.

"By virtue of my sword," said Sachio, boldly now, seeing that he might not evade this issue.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach aches, tongue is coated and when the weather is cold you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated bringing you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's uric waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

CENTENARY OF OHIO GOVERNOR

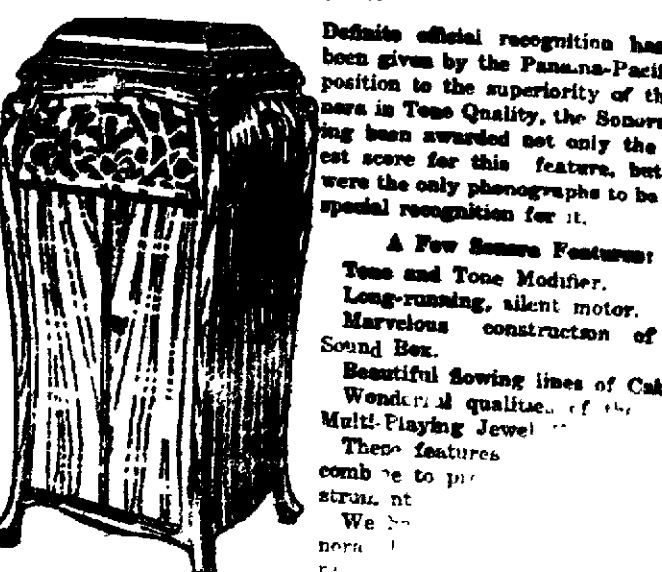

Columbus, Nov. 22.—Officials at the State House recalled today as the centennial anniversary of the birth of William Dennison, Ohio's noted civil war governor. Gov. Dennison was a native of Cincinnati and was a delegate from that city to the Pittsburgh convention in 1868 which inaugurated the Republican party. He was selected governor of Ohio in 1869 and upon the outbreak of the war took possession of the railroads and telegraphs in the name of the state and promptly adopted other measures demanded by the exigencies of the time. Through his assurances of support to the Unionists in western Virginia and his promptitude in sending Ohio troops into that section, the western territory of the Old Dominion was saved to the Union. In 1864, when Postmaster-General Montgomery Blair resigned his seat in President Lincoln's cabinet, Gov. Dennison was appointed his successor. He was re-elected in 1872, when his policy of reconstruction

TO DISCUSS IRRIGATION PROBLEMS.

Bassano, Alta, Nov. 23.—Experts in agriculture, exponents of irrigation and practical students of conservation are assembling here in large number to take part in the annual congress of the Western Canada Irrigation Association. The two days' program will be devoted to the consideration of practical irrigation problems of interest to the United States and Western Canada. The speakers will include A. L. Sifton, premier of Alberta; J. T. Hinkle, of Oregon, vice-president of the International Irrigation Congress; I. D. O'Donnell, supervisor of irrigation, United States Reclamation Service, and D. H. Bark, in charge of the United States irrigation investigations in Idaho. At the conclusion of the sessions the delegates will pay a visit of inspection to the Bassano dam and irrigation works, the largest of its kind on the American continent, and second in size only to the Assouan dam in Egypt.

VERNON CASTLE A DOG SHOW JUDGE.

Boston, Nov. 23.—Vernon Castle, celebrated dancer, made his debut as a dog show judge today at the opening of the big annual exhibition of the Eastern Kennel Club in Mechanics' Building. August and Raymond Belmont, of New York, were among the other judges in the ring. The show embraces more than 1,000 thoroughbred dogs and is the largest exhibition of its kind ever held in New England. The entries include almost all the great canine champions that are being shown on the American kennel circuit this season. The display of Airedales, fox terriers and Scotch terriers is pronounced by the experts to be the best ever displayed at an American show. The larger breeds of dogs are also well represented. Judging began today soon after the opening and will be continued until the show closes Saturday night. Cash prizes and trophies totaling $10,000 in value will be distributed among the owners of the dogs.

BLAME LAID ON MOVIES

Salina, Kan., Nov. 23.—Because of the firm hold with which the motion picture craze has seized the people of Salina, the big Convention Hall in this city was put up for sale at auction today to satisfy a mortgage judgment. The building was built 19 years ago by the local branch of the United Commercial Travelers. It embraces one of the largest and finest opera houses in the state. During the first few years it was a financial success, but with the coming of the motion picture shows and the disappearance of the traveling theatrical companies the house lost a large part of its patronage and it has been unable to pay off its indebtedness.
